Important works by C. F. W. Walther are available in English in CPH print volumes. Concordia also recently launched a “Walther’s Works” subscription program. Yet many other works by Walther are available for free to anyone with a web browser. This bibliography organizes these online works alphabetically. It also links to them, allowing for quick searching (including searching for sermons within sermon collections, by text and by key words). It includes some notes.

Two cautions: 1) Hyperlinks may become out-of-date in the future. That is one reason for providing more than one link for a few of the documents. 2) The compiler cannot vouch for the accuracy of the translations linked to, or for truthfulness of everything Walther asserts. Let all agree what Walther wrote and preached:

“God’s Word and Luther’s doctrine pure, shall through eternity endure.”

Please e-mail the compiler at danwitte@gmail.com if you notice omissions, duplications, typos, copyright infringements, or other needed corrections. He promises to attend to them promptly.

Addresses and Prayers of C.F.W. Walther for his Congregation’s Meetings

• 31 addresses to the newly received congregation members (pages 1–52)
• opening prayers at the assembly of the general congregation and their representatives, arranged by season of the church year (pages 57–75)
• 18 prayers concerning God’s Word (pages 77–86)
• 26 prayers concerning the Christian church (pages 88–102)
• 14 prayers at the election of pastors or teachers (pages 104–111)
• 133 general prayers (pages 112–199)
• 18 prayers at the assembly of representatives (pages 200–208)

(Also translated by Rudolph Prange and published by Concordia in 2011 as For the Life of the Church— but none of what Walther wrote in that edition can be read online; see the table of contents there, and the perceptive review of that edition by Jeremiah Gumm.)

Perhaps over-the-top, but certainly a heartfelt blurb about that edition:

“No other book better illustrates why God chose C.F.W. Walther to serve as a pastor, professor, and president for the growing Lutheran churches on the American frontier. Walther’s prayers and addresses are filled with the Spirit-given, Gospel-centered wisdom that startles those who would lead the Church today. They are so immediate in their concerns for the parish, so focused on God’s Word and Sacraments that they draw us to wonder at the devotion of this man of God. Yet these same prayers and addresses sound most beautiful on the lips of laypeople, for whom Walther first spoke and wrote them. What more-fitting anniversary tribute could we bring to the One who raised up Walther than to turn our eyes heavenward, join our hearts in prayer, and raise up to God’s throne these sincere petitions, which still define our highest spiritual needs as His children?”

Altenburg Theses (presented at the Altenburg Debate in April, 1841)

Matthew Harrison comments that the theses “represent seminal contextual material for his views on the church and the office of the ministry, later fully developed.”

John Brenner writes: “After months of studying the Scriptures, the writings of Luther and the orthodox Lutheran dogmaticians, C.F.W. Walther presented his famous Altenburg Theses on Church and ministry.”

The 25 Theses only (originally eight convention essays), translated by William Dallmann
From the Preface:

“The American Luther [Dr. C.F.W. Walther] wrote three monumental works:
Church and Ministry, The Proper Form of a Lutheran Free Church, and The Evangelical Lutheran Church the True Visible Church of God on Earth. These also may be called ‘first principles.’ From them, and by means of them, the whole of the subsequent movement of ‘Missouri’ was worked out.”

translated by Souksamay Phetsanghane in 2002 (?)
from Lehre und Wehre, Vol. 29, No. 10, October 1883
— Walther argues that the Election Controversy of his day was not new; Samuel Huber and Lucas Osiander the Elder had argued similarly in the late 1500s
Theses on Church and Ministry (1852/1894)

Translated and explained by Carl Lawrenz, in “An Evaluation of Walther’s Theses on Church and Ministry.”

aka, “The Voice of Our Church Concerning the Question of the Church and the Ministry” Translated by Dr. W. H. T. Dau

Todd Peperkorn’s 1999 S.T.M. Thesis, “The Use of C.F.W. Walther’s Kirche und Amt in the Lutheran Church Missouri Synod to 1947,” Appendix II, mistakenly paginated as pages 148–138, shows that this work had had five English translations. Now there are six:

- 1897 Graebner
- 1938 Dau
- 1962 Mueller
- 1972 Tappert
- 1981 Drickamer
- 2012 Harrison

Peperkorn has a multi-page chart showing the different ways the translators worded the theses.
Some notes from Harrison on his revision/translation.

Why Should Our Pastors, Teachers and Professors Subscribe Unconditionally to the Symbolical Writings of Our Church

Essay delivered at the Western District Convention in 1858
Translated and condensed by Alex. Wm. C. Guebert in 1847.

Appendix 1

Besides the three Walther sermon volumes Baseley translated, and the two Heck translated, no full translations are readily available for online ordering or reading of the following two collections of Walther’s sermons.

Heck published the latter in 1964, though, so perhaps Concordia will release a revised translation in the future.

Licht des Lebens (Light of Life)
Gnadenjahr (Year of Grace)
Appendix 2

Please read this excerpt from a sermon on the Gospels, if you read nothing else.

Believe this with all your heart!

Picture the waiting father and the prodigal son, too.

“In the resurrection we hear that God was not satisfied merely to send his Son into the world and let him become man for us. Yes, it was not enough to give his own Son into death for us. No, when his Son had finished everything which he had to do and suffer in order to earn grace, life, and blessedness for us, God, humanly speaking, because of burning love to us sinners, could not wait for us to come and beg him for his grace in Christ. No, scarcely had his Son finished everything, then he hurried to give to all men the grace merited through the resurrection of his Son, to acquit them all from their sins, and before heaven and earth publicly, really, and solemnly declare them redeemed, reconciled, clean, guiltless and righteous in Christ.”
